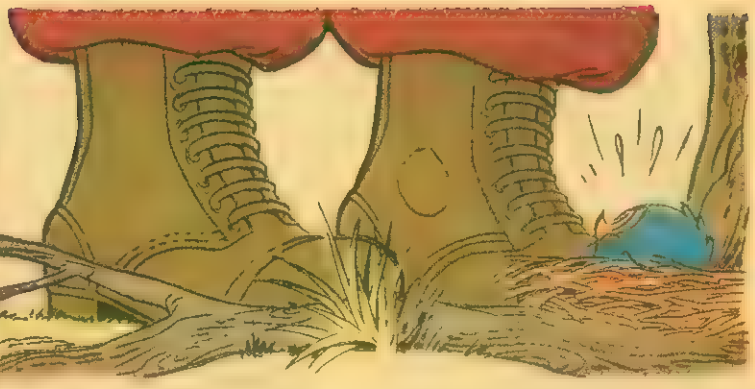
The Gentleman Giant



Bertie Bird, who usually is not afraid of anything, woke up in the early dawn shaking with fright. Nudging his brother, who was asleep beside him, he whispered, "Billie, Billie, wake up."

"It's not time to wake up," Billie replied, his eyes still closed tight. "Go back to sleep."

"I can't. I had a terrible dream. A huge, ugly giant was thundering through the trees, knocking them all down. Then he picked our nest to take home with him."

"What a silly dream," Billie scoffed. Then, just when he was about to say, "Close your eyes and forget it," their nest began to seesaw backward and forward.

"This is no dream!" Bertie cried.

As their home rocked dizzily, Bertie and Billie began to slide—bumping first one side of their nest and then the other.

"Billie, do you suppose a giant really does want our nest?" Bertie quavered.

"I can't imagine why anyone would want it," Billie yelled as he passed Bertie sliding backwards. "Some of the twigs are broken, and it needs a lot of fixing."

"I'll have to take this limb, too," a deep voice echoed in the morning air outside the nest. To the two little birds shaking inside their darkened home, the voice sounded as if it belonged to a giant twice as big as they had imagined.

Brrrrrr! A spine-tingling roar jangled the air, causing the whole world, it seemed, to vibrate. Billie and Bertie vibrated with it until the deafening sound purred to a halt. Then, CRASH! they dropped through space, only to bounce springily to a stop a moment later, on the ground.

"This is too much," Bertie cried. "Quick! Let's try to escape."

"All right, Bertie, but let me go first," Billie agreed, trying to be protective.

Cautiously raising his head above the rim of the nest, Billie peered about in all directions. What he saw made the tiny feathers on the back of his neck stand on end. Swiftly, he pulled his head inside and ducked to the bottom of the nest.

"It's a giant all right," Billie reported to Bertie. "I saw his boots, laced clear up to his knees. And I could see all kinds of strange weapons hanging from his belt. Bertie, I'm as scared as you are."

Now Bertie felt called upon to do something courageous, so he raised himself up to his full height and looked all around. Finally, he looked up! What he saw held him frozen to the spot. The giant was leaning down, with arms outstretched, reaching for their nest.

"Hey, Joe. Look what we have here," one giant called as he beckoned to another. Bertie wondered how many giants there were. "There was a nest on that limb we sawed off."

"Well, what do you know! Two cute little bluebirds. Sorry, fellows. It looks as though we wrecked your nest. Well, we'll fix that in a jiffy."

Bertie sighed with relief. What had seemed like giants, from a bird's-eye view on the ground, were really telephone men, clearing the way for new lines.

"How do you like this?" the "giant" asked as he finished weaving some brightly colored telephone wires into a beautiful nest. "I'll hang it in a safe place and you can move right in," he added, gently lifting the birds to their new home.

Bertie managed a smile and chirped, "This is a nightmare turned into a dream . . . a dream-house, that is."

Give "safety thru skill." Train me to handle, shoot a gun properly. Daisy is the best for this. HAVE FUN SAFELY

DON'T GET HURT

NEVER zigzag from side to side.
NEVER ride "without hands."
NEVER hitch behind cars or trucks.
NEVER carry "passengers" on your bike.
NEVER ride so fast you may lose your balance or be unable to stop quickly.
NEVER ride with bad brakes or tires.

BE SMART—PLAY SAFE

ALWAYS ride on right side of roadway.
ALWAYS look carefully when approaching an intersection.
ALWAYS signal before turning but keep both hands on handle-bars when you turn.
ALWAYS know and obey the traffic laws.
ALWAYS wear white when it gets dark, and use bright headlight and red, rear reflector.

HERE'S ANOTHER SMART IDEA...

Remind your Mom that swell-tasting Juicy Fruit Gum is a healthful treat that won't spoil your appetite. Ask her to get some and keep plenty on hand!
